

S. Leonard Syme Training Fellowship in Work and Health

This 12-month fellowship is for young researchers at the master's or doctoral level intending to study work and health. IWH is particularly interested in candidates who show a commitment to research that promises to reduce work-related injury, illness and disability in Ontario. In the spirit of Dr. Syme's own contributions to research mentorship, candidates from any disciplinary background are eligible to apply. A maximum of three smaller awards or one larger award may be offered each competition.

Registration deadline: April 30, 2015

For more information about the fellowship and how to apply, visit our website: www.iwh.on.ca/syme

Or scan:

Institute for Work & Health

Research Excellence
Advancing Employee
Health